FABRICS AND TEXTILES

Don't be put off by the unassuming surroundings of Souad Larusi's North London showroom – it's a textile-lover's treasure trove. Tom Ford, Tom Dixon and artist Peter Doig have all made the pilgrimage, seeking out rare rugs, kilims and fabrics for cushions, curtains and throws. The Moroccan-born dealer started out sourcing rare and bespoke Berber (Beni Ouarain) rugs from a village 50 kilometres from where she was born. Now her quest to find the best rare textiles, linens and woven blankets and rugs takes her all over the world. A few years ago, unable to find colours she liked, she launched her own range of muted linen bedcovers, which give off an effortless lived-in look, and now she has followed up with linen tablecloths and napkins in five Larusi colourways.
